

The threatened Loggerhead is the most common of the 5 marine turtles in Florida. Their eggs are laid on sandy beaches several times a year. The young are on their own from birth and must fend for themselves. They can weigh 200-350 pounds and grow to 3 feet long.