

Jellyfish are floaters, moving freely with water currents. Comb jellies are animals closely related to jellyfish. Comb jellies move slowly by beating rows of body hairs which glow in the dark. They drift amidst the seagrass, sucking in passing fish eggs and plankton. Unlike jellyfish, comb jellies do not sting.